

Active Learning Strategies Workshop

Engaging Students in Your Classroom Using Active Learning Strategies

Learn quick and easy strategies to enliven your teaching style. Active Learning Strategies are instructional activities involving students in doing things and thinking about what they are doing. Through our training as educators, we have learned that students assimilate knowledge in different ways, but Active Learning Strategies takes learning and teaching to the next level. Using these ideas places the primary responsibility for creating and applying knowledge on the shoulders of the students. Research suggests that these strategies greatly increase students' retention of both knowledge and skills.

Presenter: Jeryl-Ann Asaro

Jeryl-Ann (Jeri) Asaro loves her job as a seventh-grade English teacher. After a 23-year career in publishing and advertising, Jeri changed her occupation and became a teacher. Since that time, she has been voted Teacher of the Year, earned a Masters Degree in the Art of Teaching, won a promising practice in character education award, and has earned her NJ Supervisor's Certificate.

Besides teaching seventh-grade, and serving as a Team Leader for her daily Professional Learning Community, she offers various workshops to teachers around the state of New Jersey. Sharing what she has learned along her journey is one of her favorite hobbies, and she writes a monthly column to spread the word at www.inspiringteachers.com. During her teaching years, she has taught at all three levels -- elementary, middle and high school. She believes that changing careers was the best life decision she ever made.
