A. Course Proposal

1. Title of the Course: Intro to Security

Department: Law/Justice

Sponsor: Dr. Kathleen Cronin

2. Essence:

a. Graduate or Undergraduate course: Undergraduate

b. Semester hours credit: Three (3) semester hours

c. Course level: Sophomore

d. Pre-requisites: None

e. Effect of the course on the current and planned departmental curricular pattern: Restricted elective in Police Science Bank.

f. Suggestime for implementation: Spring, 1982

3. Details:

a. Indicate the adequacy of the present staff, resources for implementation: Staff is more than adequate. Course can also be taught by a practitioner in the field. In fact, most programs utilize the tremendous skills of the security practitioner. Resources are adequate, and library acquisitions are being processed.

b. Statements as to the uniqueness of the course: Security is truly a unique field which causes no confusion conceptually. The department has long seen the need for instruction in this area, but has never had any opportunity to cover the topic in any other course.

c. Specific course objectives: The subject matter will include but not be limited to the following objectives: 1.) The student will become familiar with the relevant literature and materials in the security field. 2.) The students will become familiar with basic security practice, policies and procedures. 3.) The student will delve into the relationships the security industry has with the criminal justice system.

4.) The course will also provide the student with practical knowledge about detection agencies, security systems and tactics which will aid them in their search for employment.

d. Evaluation and grading: Assigned readings, essays, research assignments, exams, quizzes and class presentations are all possible forms of evaluation.

5. Rationale:

Criminal Justice programs must respond to the enormous growth of the security industry in the United States. Security Administration has been deemed the fastest growing career opportunity in law enforcement by the Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences and the New York Board of Regents. From an occupational point of view, it is imperative that this department meet this need. Also, security courses usually draw the university community at large, from all majors and disciplines. The practical benefits to the university community are frequently reflected in increased student awareness about crime prevention processes.

6. Results of Written Consultation:

The department consulted with security industry specialists in the development of the course. Dr. Cronin is closely working with John Jay College in her formation of the course. A letter of support from a Loss Prevention Supervisor from Bambergers is also attached.

Dear Prof. Nemeth

Sorry about the delay in the reply but it has been hectic with Christmas and all.

I think your course "Intro to Security" is an excellent idea, especially for anyone starting or college and considering a Law/Justice major.

Your outline is also very good.
I would suggest as part of the course a "Day in Court" for the student.
