

Join the Women's Professional Network of Rowan University for

Cultural Cuisine

to benefit the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit at Cooper University Hospital

On August 12th from 12pm-1:30pm in the Rowan Hall Atrium

Join us and taste delicacies from all around the world—all for a great cause!

Rowan University's Women's Professional Network is sponsoring a free luncheon to benefit the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) at Cooper University Hospital. All we ask is that you either make a small monetary donation or bring any of the following items (up to $10 in value). Donated items can be new or gently hugged. No toiletries, please:

- Preemie or newborn clothing
- Preemie or newborn-sized diapers
- Receiving blankets
- Baby toys, books or mobiles
- WalMart gift cards

Or if you happen to be handy with needlework, the preemies could use a blanket measuring 16"x16" or 24"x24" for small or large babies. Note that blankets should not measure more than 36"x36".

Thanks for helping to get the littlest ones off to a great start. We'll see you there!

