

GRAD

(Graduation Requirements and Advising Database)

What is GRAD?

GRAD is an online degree evaluation tool that allows you to view your academic progress. GRAD interactively matches courses completed by students toward their undergraduate degree requirements. It provides student tracking toward degree or award completion.

Who can use GRAD?

Current and/or admitted students and their advisors can run/use GRAD. GRAD uses the catalog term to select the requirements. GRAD was implemented in Fall of 2006 and evaluations are based on program requirements as of that date. As a result, students who entered prior to Fall of 2006 have access to view GRAD degree evaluations but because they may be subject to prior program requirements their evaluations might assess courses they have taken differently.

When can I view my GRAD evaluation?

Banner Self Service GRAD evaluation can be run at any time, 24/7. Ideally, you should check your progress at the completion of each term and when you register for additional courses.

Why should I use GRAD?

GRAD is a reliable tool that provides accurate, up-to-date information when you need it. It lists the degree requirements, summarizes progress based on your academic record, and assists in selecting courses that will apply to the completion of your degree.

How can I generate an evaluation and interpret the results?

User's guides for Students and Faculty & Advisors are available on the Registrar's website. How to generate a new evaluation, how to perform, what-if analysis, and how to interpret the evaluation results are all included in these documents. Also, there is a Quick Guide on how to run a GRAD evaluation.

What if I have other questions about GRAD?

Please read our frequently asked questions. If you need information that is not addressed in our documentation, e-mail the GRAD division at grad@rowan.edu for additional assistance.