About Rowan

Located on 200 tree-lined acres in southern New Jersey, Rowan is just 20 miles east of the City of Philadelphia. One of the top public universities in the northeastern region of the United States, Rowan offers 80 undergraduate majors in six colleges. The University also offers 55 majors leading to a master’s degree.

Professors, not teaching assistants, teach all Rowan classes. Because the average class size is just 20 students, you will have the opportunity to truly get to know your professors and to work with them on meaningful research projects.

Campus Life

The University offers more than 130 student organizations and activities and a wide range of educational, social and athletic programming, including the Asian Cultural Association and its presentation of Asian-Pacific Cultural Heritage Month. At Rowan, international students truly become valued members of the University community.

The Chamberlain Student Center is the campus hub. It is also the site of the popular Rowan After Hours Program, a fun late-night program offered to students every weekend.

Rowan’s Recreation Center has a comprehensive sports facility offering a pool, track, racquetball courts and a multi-sport gym.

Admission Requirements

Students admitted to IELP participate in an intensive Academic English Language Program. Depending on your English proficiency, the program will last either one or two semesters.

To qualify for the program, students must show evidence of at least a low intermediate level of English proficiency by submitting one of the following:

- English language studies on academic transcripts with a minimum grade of “B” (or equivalent);
- A TOEFL (Test of English as a Foreign Language) score between 50 and 70;
- An IELTS (International English Language Testing System) score of 4.0 or 4.5.

Other language test scores may be considered.

Exchange Students at Rowan

Rowan University has exchange relationships with universities in many countries. Students from these universities are able to spend a semester or a full year at Rowan with tuition and fees waived (students pay room and board costs only).
