WHY CHOOSE LAW AND JUSTICE?

The Department of Law and Justice Studies provides a rigorous academic program, offering classes in policing, courts, law, corrections, social justice, the causes and correlates of crime, and contemporary issues in criminal justice. Internships are required for Law and Justice majors, allowing them to gain real world experience relevant to their interests and to prepare for the career paths they wish to enter after graduation. Internships may be completed in law enforcement, law offices, prosecution, defense services, and many other areas at the local, state, and federal levels as well as in private industry.

Before graduating from Rowan, Law and Justice Studies majors will have acquired both a great deal of knowledge as well as firsthand experience in the fields they wish to enter.

THE BOTTOM LINE

As mentioned above, the Law and Justice Studies Department at Rowan University offers a unique program that allows students to be very hands-on in their respective fields before graduating. Our students enter the work force with experience on their resume, and full knowledge of what to expect in their future careers.

Our department also takes pride in the fact that faculty are readily available to help students, and we ensure that students are getting the most hands-on, diverse, and practical approach to their Bachelor's and/or Master's degree, so that they are ready for their future once they graduate. We offer a 4+1 program in which students can earn a bachelor's and master's degree in five years, saving 40% of the cost for getting each degree separately.

LAW AND JUSTICE QUICK FACTS

Ioli

"I want to attend law school and my Law & Justice major provides me with good insight into the court system. It also helps me with my critical reading and logic skills which is extremely helpful for the LSAT."
